The ACS is committed to strengthening cooperation in order to improve the lives of people in the region. Established in May 1994, the Federazione del Mare represents various Italian maritime organizations, including those involved in training, maritime law, port work, mooring, insurance, and more. The federation aims to unify the representation of Italy's maritime world and highlight its role in development, while emphasizing shared values, culture, and interests. Maritime activities contribute 2% of Italy's GDP, generating goods and services worth €34 billion annually and purchasing €20 billion worth of supplies from other sectors. These activities also provide employment for 530,000 individuals.
